Berlin Sees Reds in Axis As Hitler and Il Duce Confer

INDICATE ITALY ALSO MAY GO TO NAZIS AID

Germans Forecast Results of Brenner Pass Meeting of Dictators Today.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN. March 18—Extension of the Rome-Berlin axis to Moscow and possible eventual participation of Italy in the European war on Germany's side were indicated today by excellently informed Berlin circles as the main apparent results of today's historic Brenner Pass meeting between Fuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

The two statesmen appeared to have worked on plans for a complete reorganization of Europe, with Soviet Russia as their partner.

Berlin was filled with rumors that German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop would confer with Russian Premier Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov as soon as possible, either in Berlin or Moscow.

Say Agreement Reached

Hitler and Mussolini were said to have agreed on possible ultimate participation of Italy in the European war on Germany's side if and when such course should be deemed preferable to the present status of Italy as "neutral and yet not waging war."

The only interpretation given in Italy up to the same time to the meeting between the two leaders at the Brenner pass was that their conference was "cordial."

Until the time should come for filing in the date for a declaration of war, it was said, Italy would have no opportunity to demonstrate to the western powers that she is Germany's ally economically, politically and ideologically.

French Orders Stopped

Italy for instance abruptly ceased furnishing certain implements of war to France as she had done thereto.

The present German-Italian real agreement will be followed by other agreements for putting resources of each at the disposal of the other axis partner. (The coal agreement, to furnish the major part of Italy's coal needs by rail, followed upon the British blockade of German coal being shipped by water.)

In the event of Italy's entering the war, it was said, Germany would supply her partner with all the things necessary for waging modern war.

Hitler and Mussolini further agreed, according to sources considered gilt-edged, that an Italian-Russian rapprochement must follow next.

This in turn involves careful delineation of spheres of influence in the Balkans.

Italy Shares in Two Conferences

By The Associated Press
Rome, March 18—Two conferences among men from whom Europe waited to know whether the future held peace or more war occurred today at the same moment.

In one, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini met in a railroad car in Brenner pass while a tempest whipped across the snowy frontier between their countries.

In the other, Pope Pius XII and Sumner Welles conversed in the churchly quiet of the Vatican.

Welles, President Roosevelt's ambassador in Europe, was accompanied to the last-scheduled

Ten Held As N. Y. Murder Syndicate in Dozen Slayings

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, March 18—A murder-to-order combine which killed by contract for "big shot" racketeers was said today by a Brooklyn prosecutor to have been responsible for at least a dozen possibly 20 gangland slayings.

Brooklyn District Attorney William P. O'Dwyer said 10 men were under arrest in connection with the crimes. He said the gang was implicated in seven murders and two attempted slayings in Brooklyn, and three killings in Sullivan county in up-state New York.

Youthful gunmen, described as "young punks," did the trigger work under agreements with such racket overlords as Lucky Luciano, imprisoned Manhattan vice king, Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, and Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro, O'Dwyer said.

The prosecutor quoted one informant as saying the gang leaders had boasted to him of having "rubbed out" seven witnesses in District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's Buchalter trial, and had planned to kill the remaining four witnesses in the case.

In one case, the district attorney said, the "rubout" shot to death Irvin Penn, 42-year-old music firm executive, whom they mistook for a Dewey witness in the Lepke case.

Two young members of the syndicate, fearful they would be deserted by their leaders and left to face alone charges under which they now are held, spilled their stories, O'Dwyer said. He named them as Anthony (Duke) Maffore and Abraham (Pretty) Levine.

Small War Cabinet Predicted

Some thought he might adopt the pattern set in the World war by David Lloyd George for a small war cabinet engaged solely in direction of higher war policy.

In such a plan it was considered likely that Chamberlain would retain in the streamlined cabinet these three—Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty; Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon and Lord Halifax, foreign secretary.

Lloyd George, the World war prime minister, also was mentioned in speculation on possible cabinet personnel.

The mass Nazi raid in Saturday's twilight brought the war's first civilian casualties and the announcement that an unidentified British battleship had been hit.

One collager was killed and seven other civilians—two women—were wounded. Seven naval men were listed as casualties also, but the admiralty did not specify whether they were killed or wounded.

Estimated Estimated

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, March 18—President Roosevelt's economic advisers, moving forward to posts which are not manned during the night, found Germans installed in them.

Military advices said that all positions temporarily occupied by the Germans were retaken.

Along the Rhine, French and German troops exchanged rapid rounds of machine-gun fire while loudspeakers on both sides blared propaganda messages.

Such activity was reported to have reached a new intensity. (Guns of the Maginot line, according to a report from Basel, Switzerland, yesterday blasted propaganda billboards on the German side which bore the slogan, "do not sacrifice yourself for the English.")

Nazis Elated Over

Success of Attack

By The Associated Press
BERLIN, March 18—A series of fierce skirmishes near Zweibruecken on the western front, in which German outposts repelled strong French patrols attempting to feel out Nazi positions, was reported today by DNB, official German news agency.

The engagements were accompanied by heavy artillery exchanges all along the line, and in one sector more than 2,000 shells were fired, DNB said.

NAZIS LAUNCH STRONG DRIVES

French Report More Germans Going Into Action on Western Front.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, March 18—German attacks with the largest number of men put into action since the war started were reported by military quarters today to have been turned back by French machine gun and artillery fire.

German patrols operating Sunday in separated sectors west of the Vosges mountains and east of the Meuse River sustained what military sources described as "cruel losses" in extended operations.

At least three separate engagements occurred during the day.

The first came at dawn Sunday when French artillery observers, moving forward to posts which are not manned during the night, found Germans installed in them.

Military advices said that all positions temporarily occupied by the Germans were retaken.

Along the Rhine, French and German troops exchanged rapid rounds of machine-gun fire while loudspeakers on both sides blared propaganda messages.

TWO NAMES OMITTED IN LIST OF CANDIDATES

Joseph Conroy and Ernest A. Frost Seek Sheriff Nomination

The names of Joseph M. Conroy of 281 Leader street and Ernest A. Frost of 336 Uncapher avenue were omitted from the list of Democratic candidates for sheriff through an oversight in Saturday's edition of The Star.

Mr. Conroy is a former Marion baseball player. For 23 years he was employed at the Susquehanna Silk Mills and also has worked at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. He is now employed by the Babcock Baking Co.

Mr. Frost has worked at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. for 15 years and formerly worked at the Osgood Co. He has lived in Marion 24 years.

The names were included in the total count of candidates Saturday, leaving the total number in the county at 72.

In Saturday's list of the Republican candidates for sheriff, the initials of F. E. Williams of Marion were listed incorrectly.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary's Gesture of Futility at Outwitting Veritain Earns Sharp Rebuke from Madge.

MARY and I sent appraising glances around Katie's sitting room as we pushed back our chairs from our improvised luncheon table. We were visualizing Mary's entrances and exits, and the movements she would have to make from position to position on the stage. The reading of her role was, of course, perfect as to timing, and we fondly hoped we had infused the life which the great producer had carefully kept out of the interpretation in which he had so carefully drilled his gifted young daughter-in-law.

"It's sort of small, isn't it?" Mary asked doubtfully.

"Yes, it is," I answered honestly,

"but we can arrange the furniture so the entrances and the exits can become between chairs instead of through doors, and your only difficulty will be in the timing of your movements. The distances from place to place will be shorter, but that need make no difference. When you reach your 'appointed place,' simply stand without movement until the moment for your speech."

Makethat Stage

"I get you," Mary said, and we arranged Katie's furniture until we had an improvised stage set which I decided would do very well for this last preparation to tell the plot which I was sure Mary's father-in-law had concocted against her.

"Shall I begin now?" Mary asked, and there was something vaguely listless in her voice which made me look at her sharply. She caught my glance and flushed deeply.

"What's the matter, darling?" I asked.

She swallowed hard—I guessed to choke back tears—and broke into rapid speech.

"Do you think there's any use in going on with this?" she asked passionately. "Have you seen that devilish, sophisticated amusement in my father-in-law's eyes whenever he looks at me lately? It's as if he were savoring some secret jest against me, and you and I know only too well what that jest is. It's broken me down, I suppose he's meant it to do. He can't dream anything about our plan, but I think he means me to think that he's secretly amused at my temerity in thinking I could be a Veritain star. And he's beaten me!" She spread her shapely hands with a gesture of hopelessness. "I might as well give up now as tomorrow. I can get ready to take it on the chin with a smile."

There was an icy hand clasping my heart, for I knew that this mood could be deadly in its effect on her work. I must do something unusual, something desperate, to combat it.

"What makes you think you're going to take it on the chin with at Mary St. Home.

Harold Gandert, 58, an ex-freight conductor, was instantly of a gun yesterday at 9:30 a.m. at 815 Mary street. M. F. Axthelm, who said the wound was caused by a 20-gauge shotgun, muzzle of which Mr. Gandert placed in his mouth, occurred in the base of the home. He only told the coroner Mr. Gandert had not been feeling well for some time and that for the last several weeks he had been despondent, apparently over his health.

Mr. and Mrs. Gandert came to Marion 25 years ago from Canton. Mr. Gandert was hired as an ex-fireman on Dec. 26, 1903 and on Dec. 2, 1908 started working as a brakeman. On Dec. 11, 1916 he was promoted to freight conductor, which position he has held since.

He was born at Mansfield on July 25, 1881, son of Conrad Gandert, a native of Mansfield, and Theresa Wolf Gandert, a native of Reading, Pa.

He was a member of First United Brethren church, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Local Commodity Firemen and Engineers.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Margaret Young Gandert, seven children, Eleanor, Joseph and Rosalind at home, Mrs. Myrtle Gant and Mrs. Grace Forest of Marion, Mrs. Margaret Shendlecker of Mt. Friends may call at the funeral home after 7 tonight and until 10 a.m. Wednesday and at the funeral home after 10:30 Wednesday morning.

DELAWARE TRIO HELD TO GRAND JURY HERE

Two Youths and Girl Deny Grand Larceny Charges.

Three Delaware young people were bound over to the Marion county grand jury on grand larceny charges by Municipal Judge Haren late Saturday when they entered pleas of not guilty and waived preliminary examination.

Bond was set at $1,000 each and the defendants were committed to the county jail when they failed to supply the bail.

Two companions, both 17-year-old Delaware high school girls, were released to their parents by Juvenile Judge Gast Saturday night to report to juvenile court officials in Delaware this week.

All five young people were arrested by city police Friday morning in charges of stealing a gold watch and chain, $10 in cash and other articles from the pockets of Frank R. Rafferty, 43, of 465 Oak street while the six were together Thursday night.

Those bound to the grand jury are: Dalton Williams, 26; James Browning, 21; and Lela Bierce, 18. Williams and Dalton asked for a preliminary hearing in the lower court when they entered not guilty pleas Saturday morning but later in the day they waived their rights to the preliminary hearings. Miss Bierce pleaded not guilty before Judge Haren Saturday afternoon and immediately waived the preliminary examination.

The two younger girls, both seniors at Delaware high school, also were arraigned before Judge Haren Saturday afternoon but their cases were turned over to Judge Gast because of their age. Judge Gast said that the cases will be turned over to juvenile court officials in Delaware in keeping with his policy of having juvenile cases handled in the counties in which the defendants reside.

Financial Stewardship

ATTRACTING only casual interest, because his claim to renomination as his party's candidate for governor is unassailable, John W. Bricker last week filed nominating petitions bearing 153,000 signatures from Ohio's 88 counties and announced he would seek reelection on his first term record.

His quiet declaration was in contrast with the bombastic and intemperate announcement of Martin L. Davey, his predecessor, who a few days previously had become the eighth Democrat to enter that party's primary tree-for-all to pick an election opponent for Gov. Bricker. Oratorical fireworks are not in the governor's line; he has no need of them.

When he was a candidate for his first term, he promised nothing more sensational than sound financial stewardship, a neglected art in government but still the basic secret of good government. The state's business, he said, would be conducted in the open, "Legal graft," condoned by the Davey administration, would be abolished in favor of common honesty. The people's money would be spent carefully; Ohio would get its dollar's worth. Taxes would not be increased.

"It is my belief the people of Ohio want that kind of government continued," explained Gov. Bricker, announcing his candidacy for reelection. "In declaring my candidacy I pledge to the people of Ohio a continuance of that kind of administration."

Miracles being uncommon, a policy of sound financial stewardship did not find immediate acceptance. It was hard to believe the gravy train had been taken off the schedule—some still can't tolerate that painful thought. There have been various attempts to test Gov. Bricker's sincerity, including the abortive "smear" of a Cuyahoga county relief crisis which, strangely enough, ceased to be a crisis as soon as local officials decided the governor really meant what he said.

It is significant that the meanest thing Gov. Bricker's critics can think of to say about him is that he is sitting on the treasury lid to qualify himself for his party's presidential nomination. This is a symptom of the two plus two makes six reasoning of the times. It discredits only those who use it. If honesty and prudence in spending public money are shortcomings, American politics needs more politicians with similar shortcomings.

This newspaper sincerely believes Gov. Bricker has given Ohio a sound and competent administration; that Ohio citizens should recognize good government by voting for its continuance.

Score One for the Knee Jerk

IF ANSWERS to census questions about income can be answered by mail that probably makes everything all right. Not many rugged individuals will take the trouble anyway.

But they will have established once more the right to cry out against jobholders and get results. That is a million times more important than a freight train of statistics about income.

It proves the American knee jerk—the patella reflex—is still Hale and hearty. In the long haul, this is about the only genuine characteristic of the political animal in the United States.

He is the only one of the species to make a fetish of bating down the ears of jobholders whenever the angle at which they're cocked suggests the jobholders are paying too much attention to matters that shouldn't concern them in a free country. *

The rumpus over census questions was silly, us President Roosevelt said it was. It also was symptomatic. The government has found out that the national reflex on business is still working. It was worth the trouble.

Within 10 Days

BOTH the diplomatic and military strategy of Hitler's Germany are based on the psychology of suspense. A new surprise is always imminent.

To a large extent, the same policy also is the secret of Nazi domestic power. Opposition at home, like the opposition abroad, is kept off balance by terror of what may happen next.

What happens when the possibilities of terror have been exhausted is a question for philosopher to ponder. Eventually, there must come a time when terror's victims, having experienced the worst that can be inflicted, have nothing more to fear. That time has not yet come, however.

Thus, it is being hinted in Berlin that important new "surprises" will occur within the next 10 days. While this is not a new threat, the middle of March having been designated as long ago as last January as a climax period, it has the desired effect.

Events in Finland had monopolized attention, with the effect that Germany's next move had been obscured in Russia's current move. But collapse of Finnish resistance clears the stage for a new episode. Presumably, Nazi leadership will seize the opportunity to create a new sensation.

Whether it will be military or diplomatic, or a combination of both, nobody knows. But having posted notice, it would be fatal not to put on a show. The instant Hitler is suspected of lacking a new surprise to spring, his power will begin to fade—at home and abroad.

News Behind the News

Indications Seen That President Is Ready To Make Labor Board Changes.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 18—The White House through one of its inside agents, has sounded out two or more eminent men on whether they would accept appointments to a reorganized national labor relations board.

No better evidence is needed to discern that President Roosevelt is getting ready to act, but there is some. Legislative arrangers for the executive are working on Chairman Gene Cox of the house rules committee to get him to agree to report a closed rule reorganizing the board and enlarging it to five members—and nothing else.

Such a rule would preclude offering of amendments in the house and thus restrict the issue to personnel reorganization without changing basic law in any other respect.

This solution is being tried because the initial plan to have the President call for the resignation of the three current boardmen ran into presidential reluctance. They could have been fired on the basis of an expected report from J. Edgar Hoover to Attorney General Jackson, certifying the truth of Smith committee evidence that they lobbied in Congress in violation of the 1910 law. But favorite government officials, including Tommie Coecker, might have to be fired if lobbying in Congress became a valid cause for dismissal. Other legal excuses are not handy; in this instance, no congressional action may be required even though it pains John L. Lewis terribly.

Reorganized setup now lacking form in executive mind calls for something like appointment of one member upon C.I.O. recommendation, one upon A. F. of L., probable retention of William Leiserson and selection of two outsiders.

French Discontent

The French are only half concealing their inward boiling over British inaction, but few outside appreciate the depths to which their rage is reaching.

The confidential history of Allied cooperation in the state department files here shows the French wanted to go after Hitler when he moved into the Rhine land, but were restrained by London. The Munich appeasement later engineered by British Prime Minister Chamberlain, caused the French general staff officers to tear out their moustaches blade by blade. They claimed Chamberlain had sold them down the river when Czechoslovakia.

At the outbreak of the war, the French government had planned to give Italy 24 hours notice in which Mussolini was to make up his mind which side he would be on. In case he decided wrongly, they were to move in upon Germany through Italy, where no German fortifications had been raised. Again they were stopped by London.

Now since the Finnish experience, Premier Daladier has thrown this whole British policy of inactive warfare in to the French Senate for debate, knowing the discontent that exists there.

Vital Oil

It is hardly a secret any more that oil will win or lose the war. The single important weakness of the German war machine is oil. If the Allies abandon entirely the blockade on foods and other materials, but succeed in depriving Hitler of oil, they could win.

Germany has only two important sources of supply, both outside her borders. Her local production is an insignificant 400,000 tons a year. In addition she is now making around 3,000,000 tons synthetically from coal. This is not enough to run two-thirds of her current war machine even in its present idle state.

She is maintaining her fighting efficiency by imports from Rumania and the Baku fields of southern Russia. Peaceful Russia can now supply at a rate of about 1,000,000 tons a year, and Rumania of approximately 1,500,000 tons. This would give Hitler about 6,500,000 tons a year, barely enough to keep going. He cannot get more from Rumania under present conditions, but the Baku field is generally believed to have one-half of the known deposits of the world. Even under Russian inefficiency it is producing less than 40,000,000 tons a year. Total American production is 180,000,000 tons. Theoretically the Russians could give Hitler 5,500,000 tons of this, and if efficient German methods were introduced, the supply would be limitless.

The clear job of the Allies now is to cut off the oil. If the

Watch For Us!

We'll Be the Crazy Man
See Leaving a Restaurant
Waiters Interrupt His S-

By DAMON RUNYON

ONE of these evenings you may see a low leap out of a dinner party in a restaurant and start heaving things. In company of loud yells. That will likely be us, driven crazy by trying to story while the waiters take orders.

You know the sort of party we make a regular, formal affair, but six or eight gentlemen invited to dine without advance preparation by way of ordering. Let us say, hostess for the sake of convenience. Just one of those informal little gatherings, perhaps rounded up on the spur of the moment. You can see gatherings of this nature in New York restaurants any evening.

We should not be there in the first place. We realize that. We are the type that should be strictly single-o, or at worst no more than one-half of a two. Damon Runyon comes when it comes to dining. When the sounds, we want to get our vest against the trough.

The trouble with us, we are a weak actor, with scant imagination. When those hurry-up invitations to dinner we are never bold enough to decline, offering some reason and never quick to think of a good reason. We hum and stand feebly and the next thing we are sacked in.

UNDERSTAND, we appreciate the element of being invited. We are the type that should be strictly single-o, or at worst no more than one-half of a two. Damon Runyon comes when it comes to dining. When the sounds, we want to get our vest against the trough.

We usually arrive ahead of time, with another of our weaknesses. If we have strength of character, we would wait until definite information the others were and eating, then dash in. But there's ahead of time, so we have to wait others and when they get there they have a few bells up at the bar before down.

As we do not indulge, this increases tedium of the delay, and we always pass off light, laughing remarks about sturdiness. It is one of the crosses we will not dwell on the slight contendant upon finally getting the party except to say that this proceeding is enlivened by a few jests by the inevitable median, without which no party would l

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Campbell of near Caldonia.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, March 19, 1920.

Three chief leaders of the German revolution, Von Rapp, Von Luetwitz and Col. Bauer, fled from Berlin as government forces began to gain control. Berlin was reported to resemble a battlefield, with barbed wire entanglements and barbed wires stretched across the main streets.

The Grand theater was featuring the picture, "The Mystery of the Yellow Room" and the feature attraction at the Orpheum was "The Clodhopper" with Charles Ray in the leading role.

Arrangements were made for erecting a $25,000 addition to the J. C. Newman cigar factory at George and Main streets.

J. M. Linson of Elm street returned home from attending the funerals of two members of his family. Rites were held Tuesday at Lima for his brother, D. W. Linson, and on Wednesday at Bellfontaine for his sister, Mrs. John Kimball.

Politics Keeps Jim Farley Busy

Family Doesn't Like It Because He's Away from Home So Much.

Four Farleys: Anne, Jim, Bess, Elizabeth.

This is another in a weekly series of articles describing the family lives of possible presidential candidates.

By GRIDRICK ARNE
Associated Press Feature Service Writer.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The first big party to which young James Farley took his bride after their marriage was a political reception. Naturally. In 1920, New York Democrats were rallying to meet that year's standard bearers, James Cox and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It was the usual frantic, crowded political scene. The young Farleys were shoved around. They didn't get near the reception line. The bride wanted to go. The bridegroom said "No."

Afterward the bride said, in a hush tone, "That nonsensical scene! I'd never have married a politician if I'd known they have to go through such things."

Jim Farley never did get used to the political hurly-burly. Jim Farley became the center of it in the most frantic eight years of this century. And yet theirs is such a securely cemented marriage it gives onlookers the old-fashioned warm feeling of home.

They're both big, energetic blond people who look as if they'd just been scrubbed. Their lives, politics notwithstanding, revolve around the three children: Elizabeth, 17, at Wellesley; Anne, 15, at prep school, and young Jim, 13, at military school.

He Phones Every Day

The family has stayed in their comfortable Fifth Avenue apartment in New York. For two reasons. Mrs. Farley wants to keep an eye on the children in school. And she doesn't like Washington's social whirl although she comes down for the "must" affairs. Farley keeps a hotel room.

he did it because he wanted people to remember him.

He's signed 2,000 an hour at night after the telephone stops ringing.

One of the letters he treasures is from an old school teacher who knew his mother. She wrote, "How proud your mother would have been of them."

Daughter Anne seems to be most opposed to his political career. The family is faithfully Catholic. And Anne often prays.

The night her father gave the Jackson Day dinner address here this year she listened via the radio. He made that much quoted introduction. "Mr. President, Mr. Vice President and—Follow Candidates."

Fifteen-year-old Anne got it. She turned to her mother and said, "We're going to have to pray just twice as hard."

He Doesn't Like Dinners

The family's quarrel with politics is the fact that it takes them out so much. He doesn't like endless dinners, either. But when the Farleys eat—

Farley was in the building supply business before he joined the Roosevelt camp back in 1930. They had lived quietly. Small group of friends. Occasional theater for the Mister and Missus. Occasional boxing match.

But he wanted a political career from his high school days. He won first public office in his early 20s—town clerk of his home town, Haverstraw, N. Y.

Even then Farley had his winning political philosophy worked out. He felt that the personal contact meant more than anything else. He went around and talked to everyone he could reach. He started the hand-shaking for which he is now famous. He started the "Call me Jim."

To Remember Him By

He started signing his letters in green ink. He says quite simply

"Need More Money"

What's ahead for him. He's a healthy 51 with a family just getting into the expensive years of college. He frankly says he needs more money than his present pay of $15,000 a year. That's why he wrote his book, "Behind the Ballots." He could easily step into business. Cancer again if he makes good his desire to retire from politics.

But he says he wouldn't change a thing that's happened. He says of himself, "That youngster who pushed doorbells has come a long way. It could only happen here. America is a great country."

All-Star Victory Boosts National's Prestige

Feller Losing Pitcher As Senior League Wins Tilt, 2-1.

By The Associated Press

TAMPA Fla. March 12—The long abused National leaguers to day strutted the streets in broad daylight and it pleased everybody. Oh yes the American league. We had the stars over for a practice game yesterday. Beat them 2 to 1 with our reserves.

Which in essence is true. The National league All Stars did win an exhibition on game with less than 17,000 spectators, contributing approximately $2,000 to the Finnish relief fund. And three substitutes did blend their talents to score the winning run in the ninth inning.

But in reality, the game proved nothing except that the pictures are far ahead of the battles in spring training and that a lineup of sluggers is just another lineup when the fast ones and not the batters are hitting.

However, the victory was given creditably by the senior circuit. It was St. Paul's day in the rest of the country, but it was Groundhog day to the National leaguers who stepped out of the holes in which they had been hiding since the last World Series.

The siege guns in the American lineup failed to get much more than a loud foul. They were held to five hits, Bill Dickey and Frank Crosetti getting two each and Jimmy Foxx one and home was better than a single.

The National leaguers collected six blows all singles putting two of them together in the ninth for the kill.

The Americans took the lead in the second inning when DiMaggio walked, went to second on Dickey's single and went home on Crosetti's first hit.

The Nationals tied it up in the fourth when Ott walked and advanced when Harry Danning was hit by Buck Newsom and a wild hit in the fifth sent him out of the hole in this inning, but in the ninth Al Lopez, Bobo, Billie Williams and the pride of Tampa sent a blinding single to center went to second when Bill Dickey, Cleveland first baseman, dropped a Hobbie Hensley's throw on Terry Morris' sacrifice and scored the winning run on Pete Cosentini's single through short.

Bill McKechnie Red manager in charge of the National team started Paul Derringer and followed with Kirby Higbe, Luke Hamm, Buck Willems, American pilot, who started seven of his Yankees sent Red Ruffing to the mound and followed him with Newsom, Dutch Leonard and Feller.

In 1938 the District of Columbia assessor (who is one of Uncle Sam's assessors, too you know) took a look at the record and assessed Mr. Sweeney 88 cents for the time he'd been here.

Mr. Sweeney went to the assessor's office and protested that he was a resident of Boston, not Washington. A subordinate there told Mr. Sweeney persons who don't like our laws, don't have to stay here. That was a mix up. Perhaps he was misled by the smile on Mr. Sweeney's Irish map.

Not only did Mr. Sweeney burn the young man up with words that would have eaten through asbestos, but Mr. Sweeney went into action—legal action.

He got himself an attorney—a lawyer who represents himself has a fool for a client, he says.

The other day Mr. Sweeney's two year fight came to an end with a knockout. And it was not Mr. Sweeney on the floor. The United States court of appeals held that a government employee residing in Washington but domiciled elsewhere is not subject to the district's levy on intangibles. That not only gave Mr. Sweeney his 88 cents back but set a precedent for about 23,000 other government employees.

Mr. Sweeney says that even if it had cost nine the $1,000 or so that it would have a layman it would have been worth every cent of it.

So if you're mad at the internal revenue department and think you can prove they ain't done right by you go to it. You may be another Mr. Sweeney—and it's Mr. Sweeney's that make this country worth living in.

CRAWFORD CO. MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

E. R. Pfeiferer Steps from Car into Path of Flyer.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, O.—March 18—Elmer R. Pfeiferer, 57, a farmer of near Lemer, north of Bucyrus, was killed almost instantly here Saturday night when he walked in the path of the eastbound Broadway Limited of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

At Bucyrus' police reconstructed the accident. Mr. Pfeiferer driving his automobile north on Poplar street believed he had come to Mansfield street and made a left turn directly onto the rush tracks of the double tracks at the Poplar street crossing.

The headlights of his car turned directly into the headlight of the train which was on the north track. Evidently police believe the glare of the lights confused Mr. Pfeiferer who thought his car was in the flyer's path. He got out of his car and stepped directly in front of the limited.

His car stopped on the south track was unscathed as the train rushed by. The crew unaware of the accident, did not stop the train.

Mr. Pfeiferer was caught by the front of the train and was partially thrown underneath the wheels amputating his right leg and the force of the jerk to the ground crushing his head.

The Munz ambulance was pronounced dead at City hospital before moving to a farm near Lemer a year ago Mr. Pfeiferer lived in Bucyrus. He was born in Liberty township on Feb. 17, 1883 and was married on Feb. 18, 1904 to Miss Maneta Klink.

Surviving with the widow are five children Lester Pfeiferer of Jefferson township, Mrs. Clara Shattuck and Mrs. Grace Milligan of Cleveland. Howard Pfeiferer of Troy and Miss Ethel Pfeiferer of Bucyrus seven grandchildren three brothers George John and Henry Pfeiferer all of Liberty township and one sister Mrs. Elizabeth Carris of Bucyrus.

Mr. Pfeiferer was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church east of Bucyrus. Burial will be made in the church cemetery following the funeral service Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. at the Munz funeral home.

In involving sections parking should be prohibited on streets less than 36 feet wide intersecting busy thoroughfares. The no parking ban on such streets should apply on both sides of the intersection with the thoroughfare back to the first ally.

The survey of the parking situation was an elaborate one involving several separate studies.

Parking Space Measured

One study revealed the amount of legal parking space on various major streets Center street from the Pennsylvania railroad to High street is 7,305 feet long. Of this 4,412 feet is available for parking enough for 240 cars. The rest of it divided as follows: fire plugs 3 feet; driveways 512 feet; bus stops 288 feet; alleys 189 feet and other no parking areas 1,469 feet.

Plans also are being made for a short next week at which maple syrup will be awarded to the high score marksmen. March 27 has been set as the tentative date.

Dates for five registered shoots at the Gun club during the spring and summer were announced today. They are April 24, May 30, June 19, July 4 and Aug. 8. Scores made in these shoots will be registered as the basis of handicaps in the Grand American competition at Vandalia in August.

The German high command said two other warships probably were damaged also.
